GLOSSARY OF TERMS

ASTRAGAL: A moulding with a symmetrical profile used in creating panels and for horizontal banding in cornice, wainscoting and pilaster assemblies.

BACK BAND: A moulding used on the outside edge of a casing to increase the casing thickness for the installation of wainscoting.

BALUSTER: An upright member used under the handrail of a stair rail assembly.

BASE BLOCK: A profiled block at the base of a doorway, thicker than the casing and the baseboard and used as a termination point for the casing and baseboard.

BASE BOARD: A moulding or moulding assembly installed at the base of a wall or cabinet.

BASE CAP: A moulding used in conjunction with a base board to add height and detail.

BED MOULDING: A moulding used to smooth the transition of a right angle and add definition under a ledge or overhang; used in cornices assemblies, booms, cabinetry, and sills.

BRACKET: A ornament applied in any right angle to create an arch or support. Commonly used on the interior in doorways, windows, and under shelves. Exterior applications include entries, with porch post, and under roof or cantilevered projections.

BULLSEYE: A square block with a turned center profile used as a decorative stop for casings at the corners of door and window openings; also called corner blocks or plinth blocks.

CAP: A moulding used to finish the top edge of wainscoting. Caps are also used to bind recessed paneling and as a component in cornice assemblies.

CAPITAL: A decorative column top. Capitals can be used on freestanding columns, on pilasters, and on cabinets and doors.

CASING: A moulding or moulding assembly framing a door or window opening.

CASE/BASE: A moulding used as both a casing and a baseboard.

CHAIR RAIL: A moulding applied to the wall parallel with the floor and 30" to 48" above the floor. It is used to add definition and to protect the wall from chair backs.

CORNER BEAD: A moulding used to decoratively finish an inside or outside corner where a mitered joint is unacceptable.

CORNICE: A moulding or moulding assembly applied where the wall meets the ceiling. Cornice size is determined by ceiling height.

CEILING CROWN: A moulding that is designed to decoratively make the transition of a right angle. Used for capping walls, pilasters, cabinets, and under shelves. Used primarily in the creation of cornice assemblies.

DENTIL: A decorative moulding with a repeating rectangular block pattern used in cornice assemblies.

DOOR/WINDOW CROWNS: A moulding used in the assembly of door/window mantels. The rabbeted base fits on the top of flat stock to crown the door/window mantel.

FIREPLACE SURROUND: A heavy moulding or assembly of mouldings used around the fireplace opening.

FLAT STOCK: Flat boards of varying widths and lengths used in the construction of moulding assemblies.

HALF ROUND: Mouldings with a half-circle profile available in a variety of diameters.

HANDRAIL: The part of a stair system assembly used for gripping.

HEAD BLOCK: A rectangular block with a turned center profile used as a decorative stop for casing at the top of door and window openings.

NEWEL POST: The post used in a stair system assembly to support and terminate the handrail.

PANEL MOULDING: Mouldings used to create panels on flat surfaces.

PARTING BEAD: A moulding used to terminate mouldings of varying thickness. Used as part of door/window mantel assemblies.

PICTURE RAILS: A moulding applied horizontally on a wall near the ceiling and used to hang pictures or as an accent.

PILASTER: A flat vertical assembly with a capital and base used against a wall or cabinet to simulate a column.

PLATE RAIL: A shelf assembly with grooves cut in its top surface to hold plates or decorative items.

QUARTER ROUND: A moulding with a quarter circle profile, used on inside corners and as a stop.

SILL: A moulding or assembly of mouldings forming a ledge at the bottom of a window opening on which the casing terminates.

STOP: A thin moulding used for holding windows in place or for stopping doors on closure.

WAINSCOTING: An assembly of mouldings used on the lower portion of walls, generally 30" to 48" in height from the floor.
